

Math in the Real World

Muskanpreet Kaur

This building is crafted with careful precision so that it is both efficient and useful. Math is used for many architectural purposes.

This dress is drawn with specific designs. This shows math can be used in fashion design.

This image shows a car which is made after careful calculations so that it can function properly and safely. This shows math can be used for automobile designs.

This image shows a teacher teaching people about the production of music. This shows math is used for electronic music production.